

The top scroll section adjusts the brightness of your screen and the section below enables you to choose the wall paper background on your home screen. Start by having a go at adjusting the brightness to your liking; just drag the small dot across with your finger.

If you press down on the wallpaper panel you are given the option to select a standard wallpaper or choose an image from the photo library through camera roll or imports. For now, to find the picture you would like for your wall paper... Select wallpaper, this takes you to a standard selection of pictures that come with the iPad...

You can then select whichever picture you like by simply tapping on the picture.

The image will fill the screen with a small menu bar at the top of the screen offering the following options set lock screen, set home screen or set both.

If you select set lock screen, this image will appear whenever the iPad is locked.

If you select set home screen the image will appear just as your home screen and if you select set both it will be the same picture for both.

You can either select one for the locked screen and then return to select another picture for the home screen or just choose one for both....

Once you have selected one of these options you can then press the home button at the bottom of the screen to return to the home menu and you will see your background has been updated.

Browsing the Internet...

There are two ways of connecting your iPad to the internet -one way is what we call wireless or WIFI- the other is by a sim card similar to what is in mobile phones.

To connect using the sim card- go the home page and select the Settings icon

The following page will open- you then touch on the left hand side the section where it says Cellular Data or Mobile Data and then on the right hand side turn the Cellular Data or Mobile data to ON both will turn blue when activated. You can now go back to the home page to access the internet or emails

To access the internet via Wireless or Wi-Fi follow the same steps as for the sim process but on the right hand side select Wi-Fi and Wi-Fi on the right hand side

The Safari app, which is the fourth App along the bottom menu on your home screen is an internet browser. If you select this App (as circled below) the screen shown underneath should appear.

If you tap on the blank bar under untitled a keypad will appear.... to enter a specific web address (URL) all you have to do is type it in. Try testing it out by typing www.apple.com.au

The Australian apple® website should appear as below.....

Alternatively you can use the Google search option which is this section on the right... when you tap this it will expand (see next page)...

You can then type in whatever you like into this Google box to begin an internet search...the iPad will give you an option menu with predicted Google suggestions for your search as soon as you begin typing... You can then just select the option you want if it appears. See below an example of searching for the abc news website...just abc was typed into the Google search box and then the news option in the list was selected to go directly to the Google search engine to show the search results for sites related to abc news.
