

Kim volunteers

Kim wants a job in a kitchen.

He speaks to a careers counsellor about finding a job as a kitchen hand.

The counsellor says volunteering is a good way to get experience.

She helps Kim to find a volunteer position in a community centre.

Kim has an interview with the manager.

He gets the volunteer position.
He is very excited.

He gets a text message to remind him of the date and time to attend volunteer training.

At the training, Kim learns about safe food handling.

Today, Kim is helping to prepare a community lunch.

Kim washes, peels and chops the vegetables.

He works in a team
with volunteers and staff.

Kim helps to serve the lunch.

Many people come to enjoy the lunch.

Kim has learned many new skills.

He hopes this experience will help him find a job.

First published in 2019 by Carringbush Adult Education
415 Church St, Richmond
Vic, 3121, Australia

Text and images © Carringbush Adult Education

The content of this book may be printed or photocopied free of charge for use as a teaching tool.

The Carringbush Adult Education books are supported by an interactive app 'Carringbooks', available free from your app store. For additional information on these resources, please visit www.carringbush.org.au/resources.

This project has been made possible through the generous support of Adult, Community and Further Education (ACFE) through their Capacity and Innovation Fund.

Thank you to the students of Carringbush Adult Education for their willing help with this project.

Photos by Hayley Black

Thank you to Piers Holt for additional photography

Designed by Donna Rawlins

978-1-74203-583-3

A catalogue record for this book is available from the National Library of Australia

A catalogue record for this book is available from the National Library of Australia.